Contract Specifics: Firm Fixed Price Task Order to purchase Autonomy software.

Small Business - DOE contracted with Microlink and partner Hitachi Capital American Corp. to provide the Autonomy ELA. This allowed DOE to enter into a lease-to-own (LTOP) program arrangement through the terms and conditions under Hitachi's GSA schedule. Contract was updated in September 2007 to include Autonomy IDOL 7.0 and 2 additional years of maintenance.

Product Information:

Autonomy is the leading provider of enterprise software that enables organizations to automatically understand and harness the information that is critical to their business. The Office of the CIO and Autonomy have implemented a program to provide Autonomy's capabilities enterprise-wide within DOE through the purchase of an Enterprise License Agreement (ELA). Autonomy is currently in production in several DOE organizations including EE, RW and KAPL.

ELA Benefits:

- Access to the latest version of Autonomy's IDOL technology
- All DOE organizations, including Labs, have access to Autonomy licenses
- Autonomy licenses include all of Autonomy's core capabilities: AWE, Video, Voice, Audentify, Aungate
- No limitations on number of copies of modules, number of users or amount of data
- Allows use of license for both internal and public/external access
- No need for programs to buy additional licenses
- Access to discounted implementation services

For more information about how to gain access to Autonomy software please contact Paul Hagan from MicroLink (703.637.2042 or phagan@microlinkllc.com). Information about Autonomy can be found at <http://doe.microlinkllc.com>.

Period of Performance: September 7, 2005- September 30, 2010

Customer costs:

OCIO provided $30,000 upfront to launch the IDOL7 update for used by all of DOE. Cost is determined by number of IDOL servers. Each server will cost $15K yearly. (However, new customers will be added throughout the year on a pro-rated basis).
